Blank hearts

Activity:

Step 1: Creating the Compliment Jar

Step 2: Writing Compliments

Hand out pre-written compliment hearts and blank hearts to the students.
Encourage them to think of personalized compliments for their classmates and write them on the blank hearts.
If students are struggling, remind them they can use the pre-written compliments or modify them to make them more personal.

Step 3: Sharing the Love

Once students have written their compliments, have them fold the hearts and drop them into their classmates' paper bag jars.
Make sure everyone receives compliments, and encourage students to write at least one compliment for each classmate if possible.

Conclusion:

Gather the students in a circle and reflect on the activity. Ask them how it felt to give and receive compliments.
Discuss the impact of positive words on a person’s mood and the importance of expressing appreciation for others regularly.
Remind them to take their paper bags home and encourage them to read their compliments whenever they need a smile.
