SONIA SOTOMAYOR

Read the biography of Sonia Sotomayor and answer the comprehension questions using the passage for reference.

Sonia Sotomayor (born 1954) was born in New York City to a Puerto Rican family. Growing up in the Bronx, Sonia faced many challenges, but she worked hard and loved to read. Her mother, Celina, was a strong influence, always encouraging Sonia to pursue her dreams and get a good education.

Sonia did very well in school and earned a scholarship to Princeton University, one of the best colleges in the country. After graduating from Princeton, she went to Yale Law School, where she became a lawyer. Sonia worked as a lawyer for many years, helping people with their legal problems. She was known for being very smart and fair. In 2009, President Barack Obama nominated Sonia to be a Supreme Court Justice, the first Latina to ever hold this position.

As a Supreme Court Justice, Sonia Sotomayor helps make important decisions about the laws in the United States. She believes in fairness and justice for everyone. Sonia often speaks to students, encouraging them to work hard and believe in themselves. Her story is an inspiration to many people, showing that with hard work and determination, you can achieve your dreams.

In addition to her work on the Supreme Court, Sonia has written books about her life and experiences. Her autobiography, "My Beloved World," shares her journey from the Bronx to the highest court in the country. She hopes that her story will inspire young people to overcome obstacles and pursue their goals, no matter where they come from.
